Who, Where, When
By Ruth Tobias

BIG OOPS!!
Last month I wrote that pianist/composer/producer ED TOSSING moved away from Chicago. WRONG! He still resides in Glenview and is, in fact, a dual-city resident. He does a lot of writing, along with session work, playing gigs and producing. He maintains a Nashville residence to accommodate his work there.

FROM THE NEWS
Recently it was reported that drummer PAUL WERTICO has been appointed interim head of jazz studies at Roosevelt University’s Chicago College of Performing Arts. Paul has been teaching drums at the university for five years, even as he has intermittently traveled the globe. This performance work has been recognized by numerous Grammy awards which decorate his home music room.

This year’s Chicago Jazz Festival closed out the summer of 2007 with ORBERT DAVIS’ Chicago Jazz Philharmonic pointing the way in the opening concert in Millennium Park at the PRITZKER Pavilion. Reports such as “There is nothing quite like it in jazz or classical music—a sprawling jazz orchestra that knows how to swing but also can address scores of symphonic complexity” whetted jazz fans appetites for more. (In addition, on September 2, WTTW-Ch. 11 aired a pre-Labor Day rebroadcast of a 2006 documentary, “Beauty Rises: Four Lives in the Arts” which extoll the rise of Davis and three other Illinois artists.)

The following night at Millennium Park, JON FADDIS obliged with a program entitled “A Night in Havana: a 90th Birthday Tribute to DIZZY GILLESPIE” evoking the trumpet wizardry of the late musician. Saxophonist JAMES MOODY, himself an octogenarian who collaborated with Dizzy, was on board to enhance the legacy.

During the week’s end, over at PETRILLO Music Shell, such performers as MARK COLBY, KIM CUSACK and JANICE BORLA held sway through Labor Day.

ONE MORE ONCE
At 84, VON FREEMAN has won the fifth annual WALTER DYETT Lifetime Achievement Award which was presented by the Jazz Institute of Chicago at the Mid-America Club to recognize artistic accomplishments in Chicago jazz. The presentation was part of this year’s Jazz Festival week. Previously, saxman FRANZ JACKSON and pianist JOHN YOUNG have been recipients.

ALL THAT JAZZ—AGAIN
For jazz fans, perhaps the best news forthcoming from JOE SEGAL is that he plans to reopen Jazz Showcase at Dearborn Station in the winter of 2008. There is a lot to do and some legalistics still to be negotiated, but he recently passed announcement fliers out at Harris Theatre stating his plans.

SYMPATHY
Once more we send condolences to KYLE De SANTIS and the De Santis family. After losing patriarch TONY De SANTIS some weeks ago, Tony’s daughter DIANE Van LENTE has also passed away. Suddenly Tony’s grandson Kyle heads the Drury Lane Theatre empire. He plans to continue his grandfather’s tradition and also will work to enhance the Drury Lane Water Tower Theatre, introducing concerts and comedians in that venue hoping to interest both visitors and downtown residents.

CHICAGO ON CHICAGO
The successful band, CHICAGO, made an appearance at the Chicago History Museum taking part in a discussion series with celebrated people who have Chicago roots. On October 17, actor JIM BELUSHI will be the guest…

When Ballet Chicago Studio Company recently celebrated its 10th anniversary at Watermark Gallery on South Halsted Street, highlights of the cocktail event included live music by the ORION ENSEMBLE and the unveiling of an original artwork, “A Decade of Dance” by KEITH EVANS which he designed especially for the Studio Company.

GIGGLES FROM GRADE SCHOOL MUSIC CLASS:
“RICHARD WAGNER was born in 1813, supposedly on his birthday… and BACH died from 1750 to the present…and BEETHOVEN expired in 1827 and later died from this… and BERLIOZ proved he was a wonderful composer by going insane!” Oh, my, did you know that?
We welcome these new, returning and transferring members to Local 10-208. They are a diversified group of musicians, representing the numerous styles of music that comprise our art. They bring with them various skills, talents and experiences, and they all have a love of music. They have decided to join us in our Union. Continued from page 6
Jazz flutist Nicole Mitchell has garnered a healthy share of newspaper print recently as music critics laud her work in such venues as Millennium Park and the Velvet Lounge.

Interviewing her brought an inherent reward of experiencing first hand, her Enthusiasm, Confidence and Connectedness. How interesting to plumb the wealth of her career achievements and discover her connectedness to those in her musical life who helped pave her way, encouraged her and built her confidence. It starts with her composer husband, David Boykin.

Admiration and spiritual connection, however, are ever-present for former Chicago musicians Shanta Nurullah, sitarist/bassist, now of Las Vegas, and Maia—harpist, cellist, vocalist, actress and writer now of Los Angeles. In 1995 these women mentors brought her into the AACM (Association for the Advancement of Creative Musicians—she has been co-president since 2005) and she co-founded their performance group called “Samana,” which speaks to “manna,” or “bread from Heaven”—nourishment and blessings through their original music.

“These two women gave me musical guidance. I learned about creative music and they introduced me to New Music (which always interested me), improvisation and doing things my own way: it was a natural transition,” she said. “I embrace every thing I have learned: training in classical music and loving that tradition, learning about jazz and the legacy of that along with New and World Music. I embrace it all so that when I create my own music, all these things are interconnected. I call it a ‘holistic’ approach.”

This has led to her 1997 founding of Black Earth Ensemble, comprised of fifteen to thirty musicians “depending on the project,” she said. “I also founded Black Earth String Quartet which is really three violins and flute. Renee Baker is our violist.”

“I have done a lot at Fred Anderson’s (Velvet Lounge), where I started with Black Earth Ensemble as a forum for my compositions and concepts. I played other composer’s music from 1990 to 1997 and this was a chance to do my own thing.” Newspaper reports of her work at Anderson’s were not only promising but very intriguing, especially when she is referenced as “world class jazz flutist” and headlines read “Mitchell music casts spell at jazz series.” The latter describes her recent contribution to Millennium Park’s “Made in Chicago” jazz series on August 8th. She chose a 15-piece group and a project to commemorate the work of the late pianist and composer, Alice Coltrane, widow of jazz icon John Coltrane. Nicole observed, “Tributes usually play compositions of the composer, but I wrote a new suite of compositions inspired by her music and who she was to me personally.”

“People have different faiths, but as people we’re looking for happiness, peace, self-actualization. I tried to bring these things together in this concert.” Her work drew raves as “the most mystical performance yet in Millennium Park.” Chicago Tribune critic Reich wrote of her “divine impulses in a jazz setting. (Her) deft writing for three flutes in the ‘Desire’ movement of her suite produced a sensuousness of sound rarely encountered in either jazz or classical contexts.” He praised the “shimmering harp cadenzas” of Maia, Nicole’s dear friend that she brought in from California. And he said her vocalist, Zahra Baker, sang out. “She’s the voice of the ancient chanting for the awakening of separated souls.” She and, of course Nicole, were expressing “a divine influence in a jazz setting.”

In 2005 Nicole played in trumpeter Orbert Davis’ Chicago Jazz Philharmonic in Millennium Park performing “Collective Creativity Suite,” a vast symphonic work that embraced free jazz improvisational techniques of AACM. Nicole excelled then and she returned this August 27th when Davis soared with his 50-piece orchestra to produce the biggest concert in CJP history.

After a childhood in Syracuse, New York, and later southern California, Nicole’s training had begun on viola and piano; at 15 she discovered the flute. During her first year at the University of California, San Diego, she fell in love with jazz and improvisation. Subsequently she studied composition at Oberlin College in Ohio. However, since Chicago was home to her every summer to spend time with her elderly grandparents, her dream was to live here permanently. She left Oberlin after a year. Both grandparents now are gone and she treasures their times together.

Arriving in Chicago in 1990, she studied composition with John Eaton at University of Chicago, earned a Bachelors Degree in Flute Performance at Chicago State University and a Masters in Jazz and Classical Flute from Northern Illinois University. “I have been blessed with opportunities to compose. In 2006 I went to the Poznan Festival in Poland for the “Harambee” Project. The word in Swahili means ‘to bring or come together.’ I went with Chicago musicians selected from Chicago’s A ACM and from Asian Improv Arts. This year we premiered a suite of compositions, “Xenogenesis,” inspired by one of Octavia Butler’s books. She is an Africa-American award-winning science fiction writer. The work was commissioned by Chamber Music America for a 9-piece ensemble and we performed it in New York for the “Vision Festival” this past June,” she related. “And I am so pleased to perform with Sinfonietta and the Chicago Jazz Philharmonic.”

Nicole also teaches at University of Illinois (Circle campus) and Wheaton College, where she is the jazz band director, and she contributes to the Ravinia/Merit Institute program offering “Music Integration” at Chicago Public Elementary Schools.

With that compelling and exciting aura about her, Nicole said her goal is to maintain a balance between performing and teaching. “I really want to thank all the musicians I work with. We all learn from each other; we’re all connected in growth and inspiration. And this summer has been so rewarding: the Millennium Park concerts and playing for Summer Dance (in the park). I love having people dance to my music.” It is a new experience she hopes to continue.
The Ernie Hines Experience performed for the Forest Park Centennial Fest on September 1st.

Ernie Hines sang on the Gospel Stage of the 15th African/Caribbean International Festival of Life event on July 4th and 5th.

The Chicago Chamber Orchestra Opens

It all began with a concert in the International House on the campus of the University of Chicago on June 1, 1952. Since that date, the Chicago Chamber Orchestra has performed thousands of concerts at the Art Institute of Chicago, Navy Pier, Grant Park, Orchestra Hall, and numerous museums, churches, schools, universities, and parks.

On September 2, 2007, Dr. Dieter Kober led the Chicago Chamber Orchestra in the opening concert of the orchestra’s 56th Season. This concert marked Dr. Dieter Kober’s 56 continuous years as music director of the organization he founded — the longest tenure of a music director of any professional orchestra in the world. He has earned recognition in the Guinness Book of Records as having conducted a single orchestra for more years than any other director, including Frederick Stock, Wilhelm Furtwangler, and Sir Thomas Beecham!

This opening concert featured the music of Franz Joseph Haydn in anticipation of the worldwide observance of the 200th Anniversary of Haydn’s death. On the program was the Concerto for Violin and Piano in D Major performed by the orchestra’s concertmaster Charles Pikler and prominent Chicago pianist Carol Honigberg and the Symphony No. 102 in Bb Major. Other works included the Andante Festivo of Jean Sibelius and the Elegy for English horn, Timpani and Strings by Harold Laudenslager with Edward Benyas and Andrew Simeco soloists.

Musicians performing with the Chicago Chamber Orchestra are all members of the Chicago Federation of Musicians. They include violinists Charles Pikler, Steven Boe, Carl Johnston, David Katz, Pasquale Laurino, Monica Lugo, Amy Pikler, Nina Saito, Josh Schlachter, and Catherine Schmidt. Violists are John Ling, Ruth Pikler, and Monica Reilly. Bill Cernota and Claire Coy are on cello and Joe Kryskiak on bass. Winds are Connie Schoepflin and Claudia Cryer on flute, Edward Be- nyas and Allison Baker on oboe, and Erin Kazakis and Carl Rzaza on bassoon. The brass are Ross Beacraft and John Cvejanovich on trumpet and Erich Peterson and Paul Austin on horn. The tympanist is Andrew Simco and the orchestra’s personnel manager is David Tuttle.

Dr. Kober was presented with an award by the Chicago Federation of Musicians for his dedication to bringing the Chicago audiences free public concerts with nationally and internationally recognized repertoire, outstanding soloists, and dedicated musicians of the highest caliber. We look forward to many more years of spectacular performances.

Another giant is gone. Max Roach died yesterday (Aug. 16th) leaving us with precious few of the original Bebop innovators. I first heard him with Benny Carter’s band at the Regal Theater in 1945. I was with my pal, pianist Don Newey, and we were spellbound by Max’s playing. THIS was something we couldn’t digest at all once in our young minds, but we knew this was going to be “our” future. Like a lot of other fledgling players around Chicago we had found a musical home.

I heard him next at the Argyle Show Lounge on Argyle, under the “El.” I went about a dozen times to hear him with Bird, Miles, Duke Pearson, and Tommy Potter. My life really changed forever in that two-week period. The thing that enabled me to hear them, that many times, was the fact that I could buy a beer at the bar, (fifty cents), then stand against the east wall, directly across from that tiny bandstand.

Next time it was at the Bee Hive on 55th. The band was Max, (who I at last met) Harold Land, Clifford Brown, Richie Powell, (Bud’s younger brother), and I don’t remember the bassist.

The last time I heard Max was at the Preview Lounge on Randolph. I was working with Jimmy Ille downstairs on the center, revolving bandstand, and Chubby Jackson had a quartet working the side stand with Gene Esposito, Billy Gaeto, and Rick Verde. BUT UPSTAIRS, in the Modern Jazz Room was the Max Roach Quintet. I don’t remember the personnel, but they played perfectly. I had the rare opportunity to really get to know him this time because once or twice a night our breaks occurred at the same time, and Max would come downstairs and we’d sit in a back booth to talk, about anything that occurred to us. I was like a kid in a candy store with a dollar to spend. Certainly that two-week period was one of the greatest, and educational, times in my life.

He touched my family … Marge’s (my wife), Clu’s (my daughter), and Bill’s (my son) life too because they all heard so much Max Roach on the stereo; in fact Clu was the one who told me of his passing.

We loved you Max. R.I.P.
