The Effect of the COVID-19 on CFM Musicians

The Coronavirus COVID-19 has been devastating to our CFM musicians. All musical performances have been cancelled. Schools have been closed and bars and restaurants have been shuttered. Originally the CDC made an announcement that any event with 50 or more attendants should be canceled for the next 8 weeks, but recently the president said at a news conference for people to avoid gatherings of more than 10. This has hit our industry hard, and musicians are facing a significant loss of income. Most of our contracts include a force majeure clause which allows the employer to not pay the employee due to many things including “epidemic”. The CFM has been sorting through all of our contracts to see what our next steps might be.

There are several resources to consult for emergency assistance. First, to learn as much as possible about COVID-19 – risks, prevention and treatment – please go to the AFM’s information page (<https://www.afm.org/covid-19/>). This provides links to pages regarding public health such as the Center for Disease Control, the World Health Organization and Public Health Departments in the United States.

For financial assistance, please go to the following:

- The Lester Petrillo Memorial Fund, (<https://www.afm.org/petrillo-memorial-fund/>) which supplies modest amounts of assistance to qualified applicants who have contracted COVID-19 on an emergency basis.
- The Actor’s Fund (<https://actorsfund.org/services-and-programs/social-services-financial-assistance>) provides emergency financial assistance, health care and insurance counseling, and senior care.
- MusiCares, (<https://www.grammy.com/musicares/get-help>) which provides a safety net for people in times of need.

If you would like to donate in order to help your fellow artists, please go to the AFM website, (<https://www.afm.org>) scroll down to the red box at right and click “Donate Here”.

Also be advised that Ray Hair, president of the AFM, is working with government to enact legislation to bring relief to those affected by this crisis. Please contact our Senators Dick Durbin and Tammy Duckworth and the representatives in our jurisdiction: Bobby Rush, Robin Kelly, Dan Lipinski, Jesus Garcia, Michael Quigley, Sean Casten, Danny Davis, Raja Krishnamoorthi, Jan Schakowsky, Bradley Schneider, Bill Foster and Lauren Underwood. Although she is in Central Illinois, contact Cheri Bustos as she is a strong supporter of musicians’ needs.

Follow the CFM website (<https://cfm10208.com>) for information about applying for Unemployment Compensation. We will get through this together and please don’t hesitate in calling the union if you need assistance. Until this virus is contained, please stay home as much as possible, wash your hands often and follow the CDC webpage (<https://www.cdc.gov>) for updates.

A Few Things

We have a new contract covering the Ravinia Festival Orchestra. It will be in effect this summer and will cover the next 3 seasons. Several improvements were gained in the agreement. Wages will increase 2% each year and the rates for doubling have increased to 15% for the first and 10% for additional doubles. The Principal pay was also changed in an effort to make it more equitable throughout the sections of the orchestra. The pension contribution rate was also increased due to the Rehabilitation Plan of 2018. That increase is mandated by the Fund for all successor agreements where a pension contribution has been within the document. This agreement is in place through the 2022 season.

The Marriott Theatre negotiating committee has been elected. The members are: Trevor Jones, Steve Duncan, Andy Wilmoth and Nick Moran. A survey should be going out to the bargaining unit and should give us some information as we work toward our proposals. This agreement covers musicians working at the Lincolnshire Marriott Theatre.

Members of the Lake Forest Symphony held a meeting at the CFM in mid-March to discuss the recent closing of the orchestra’s offices and the cancellation of the remainder of the orchestra’s season. They are discussing their options as they move forward. There was a good turn-out for the meeting and it was great to get together and share information and ideas as we discuss where to go.

In January of 2020, the CFM Board of Directors discussed the proposed 2020 budget for the CFM. During that meeting the Board voted to print 6 issues of the Intermezzo which will then be mailed to the membership or delivered via email, depending on how you choose it to be delivered. The Intermezzo’s cost for production and mailing are over $6,000.00 an issue. The decision to print 6 issues a year was in part a cost saving effort.

A committee was established to examine various parts of the transition to 6 issues (Bylaws, announcements, etc.) as well as improving content. Those on the committee included Directors Moran, Sonnefeldt and Schuchat, Communications Director Sharon Jones and Vice-President Murphy. The committee proposed to try a schedule of printing and mailing an issue approximately every other month. Probably this year we will exceed our planned 6 printed issues, but will get to that goal with 2021.

Sometimes important information will come into the office after the Intermezzo has been printed, leaving a gap of time before the next issue goes to print. We will be establishing an Intermezzo special edition that will go out via email. If you have not shared your email with the CFM, or if your email has been changed/updated, please let the CFM know. We want to be able to reach as many members as possible when something important is going on. Whether it is an alert about an action or an important meeting reminder make sure that we have your email address. Also, if audition notices come in during this gap we will be getting those notices out via email. To update your email, or for that matter any of your contact information, call or email the Local and let us know your updated information. We want to be in touch with you.

From the Secretary/Treasurer

B.J. Levy

Auditor’s Report

The independent auditor’s report is included in this Intermezzo. 2019 was a tough year, but the CFM came through it. Strike expenses were more than anticipated, but this is a fight we will engage in anytime it comes up. The investment portfolio performed well for the year. Membership stayed relatively even. If you have any questions on the full report, please don’t hesitate to contact me.

The lists of suspended and expelled members will be coming out at the end of March. If you have not yet paid your dues, please contact the membership department. If you are unsure of your current status just give us a call. Thanks and please remember that this union belongs to you. Your continued membership makes our mission possible.

I feel for each and every one of you out there who is experiencing the devastating loss of income associated with performance cancellations. The CFM is looking at ways to help, and the AFM is lobbying Congress to pass legislation that will assist workers in our industry. A union is a place for people to combine their individual efforts and create something bigger than what can be done alone. Now, more than ever, we need you to participate. Let us hear from you.

The traveling dance bands were severely challenged during the Second World War—between 1942 and 1945—due to wartime restrictions. As a result, bandleaders were hard pressed to keep their bands working.

The rationing of gasoline and lubricants made it difficult for the bands to travel from one job to the next. Wartime demand for military vehicles ended production of automobiles and light trucks for civilian use after 1942. This forced the bands to care for the vehicles they already operated and keep them running.

Then there was the matter of the wartime draft, which took many of the younger musicians (younger than 39) from the bands for military service. This affected all bands both local and traveling.

The costs of things in general began to rise, putting further pressure on operating a road band. As a result, many leaders sought long-term locations where they could avoid the headaches of travel and keep their bands intact. This called for developing many strategies to survive. George Olsen and Henry King were happily ensconced at the Aragon and Trianon most of the year. Don Reed and Lawrence Welk also played long engagements at the Trianon during the war.

But the champion was Griff Williams who landed a “for the duration” contract at the Empire Room of the Palmer House beginning in 1943. The band played there for a record 40 continuous weeks before Griff went into the U.S. Navy. He returned to the room in 1946 with most of the original band members.

The average age of most bands grew older. The only younger men in the bands were either rated 4F (not fit for military service) or were working a day job in a defense industry and were deferred from the draft.

Major cities, such as Chicago or Los Angeles, had many defense industries in the area, which provided ample opportunities for deferred defense jobs that were considered essential to the war effort. Chicago was a center for a lot of companies manufacturing military planes, aircraft components, communications equipment and automotive parts.

Many local musicians found employment in these companies and were able to moonlight in musical jobs at night. A few of the larger defense plants around the city had enough musician/workers in their employ to organize bands to entertain workers during lunch hours.

Encouraged by the musicians union to support the war effort, most bands also played at hospitals, military camps and war plants on their own time to entertain the patients, soldiers and workers. These appearances often were broadcast. In fact, the Coca-Cola Company had a nightly (except Sunday) network radio show and ran ads saying, “Coca-Cola Spotlight Bands—America’s leading bands playing from war camps and war plants.” War bond rallies in major cities most always used a dance band that was playing locally, thus providing another outlet for music.

In addition to the dance bands, there was a big increase in the use of single performers: mostly pianists, organists and small combos. These acts played in the many cocktail lounges, restaurants and other venues that had inaugurated entertainment policies to accommodate their growing number of patrons—mainly defense workers and others who now had more disposable income.

In Chicago, organists found good employment in the city’s cocktail lounges. Ann Tishko, Preston Sellers and his wife come to mind. They played in lounges, as did Harold Turner and a few others from the radio studios. Booking agencies like McConkey and Frederick Brothers booked many small combos throughout the Midwest area to play in these new venues.

Although the USO provided many facilities for welcoming the visiting and traveling soldiers and sailors, a few larger ones also had dancing to the music of small combos, but usually nothing more. The Hollywood Canteen in California, the biggest and most famous of them all, was an exception, featuring name bands and movie stars entertaining the troops.

Ian Barillas-McEntee Acct. #56704 (Oboe) originally from the Northwest side of Chicago, has made a big journey with his oboe via Montreal, Paris, Rotterdam and now back to Chicago. Born into a half Salvadoran, half American household, he began his music studies with the violin at age 6, and after learning other instruments, he ultimately chose the oboe. In high school, he was a member and Principal Oboe of the Chicago Youth Symphony and its Encore Chamber Orchestra, and also participated in the CYSO’s Eastern European Tour of 2007 to Germany, the Czech Republic and Poland. Since graduating from Lincoln Park High School, Ian went on to complete his Bachelor’s degree at McGill University and the Conservatoire de musique de Montréal in the classes of Theodore Baskin and Lise Beauchamp. During his time in Canada, he was a member of the National Youth Orchestra of Canada and went on their pan-Canadian Tour of 2010. From Montreal he had a desire to further improve his French and to experience life in Europe, and therefore auditioned and entered into the class of Nora Cismondi at the Conservatoire national region de Paris for a post-bachelor diploma (Cycle Concertiste). He later relocated to Rotterdam, The Netherlands, where he completed his Master’s degree at the Codarts University of the Arts in the class of Maarten Dekkers and Ralph van Daal. During this time, he was a member of the Dutch National Youth Orchestra (Nederlands Jeugdorkest). Since then, he has performed as an official oboe and English horn substitute with numerous Dutch orchestras, such as the Dutch Radio Philharmonic (Het Radio Filharmonisch), the National Dutch Ballet Orchestra (Het Ballet Orkest), Metropole Orchestra (Het Metropole Orkest), the South Netherlands Philharmonic (Philharmonie Zuidnederland) and the Arena di Verona Orchestra (Fondazione Arena di Verona) in Italy. Ian has participated in numerous oboe masterclasses with oboe professors Maurice Bourgue, Alex Klein, Hansjörg Schellenberger, Thomas Indermühle, Jozsef Kiss, David Walter, Jean-Louis Capezalli, Jacques Tys, Emmanuel Abbühl, Benoît Laurent, and the Leipzig String Quartet. Outside of music, Ian’s passions include competition swimming, cooking, reading languages, and road trips with his Dutch partner.

Tribute to Bob Dogan

I can't let this time pass without paying tribute to Bob Dogan, Rest In Peace. He was a complex and compelling man and musician who embodied all the wonder and tragedy of being a jazz musician. He was on one hand referred to as a "genius" by many of those I respect, and on the other limited by his individualism and eccentricities. But taken in total, there's no questioning his stature as the archetypal "jazz man", with tragedy and artistic triumph rolled into one. I was lucky enough to work with him in the studio on two albums (one of which I wrote liner notes for), trade gigs with him (I met some long lasting friends and musical colleagues through these), perform a number of his compositions, and have some degree of friendship/mentee-ship with him. Over the years there has been a seemingly endless amount of new tidbits that I have learned about Bob's life. Here are a few:

- He moved to Austin to play with Paul Ray and the Cobras taking the place of the then-little-known guitarist, Stevie Ray Vaughan when he left the band.
- He was an original member of the AACM.
- He taught at Berklee College of music and was the combo instructor for greats like the likes of John Mclean.
- Bob was a great singer!
- He was a member of Buddy Rich's band.

RIP Bob Dogan.

 For 28 Years

Your home is a big investment and I take it very seriously. I work hard to get my clients approved into the most cost-saving mortgage program possible. The company I work for, Chicago Financial Services, has been in the business for 30 years. We provide residential mortgage services to individuals for the purchase and refinance of one to four unit, primary and investment properties, including Condos and COOPs in AZ, CA, FL, IL, IN, MI, MO, WA, and WI.

Whether you want to finance your dream home, consolidate debt, refinance to a lower rate, or take cash out for a home project, I will guide and inform you on each step on the way.
